

The Pandemic has transformed the scenario of the entire education sector. The use of technology has turned into the only viable option for the teaching-learning process and assessment. The easy availability of internet connection has changed the outlook to an extent that now the concept of teaching needs to be extended beyond the physical classrooms and the learning process needs to be viewed in the context of connectivism.

Simultaneously, important changes in assessment are also being required. This initiative, thus, aims to bring together all the experts to discuss on - Online Teaching-learning process and creative methods of assessment in such times.
